Independent Study

Reference: Title 5, Sections 55300 et seq.

The Board of Trustees recognizes that the college's curricula, designed as they are for classroom learning and instruction, may not always meet the individual needs of some students. For this reason a student may undertake classes through independent study when it has been demonstrated that the student has a need for such classes and that the need cannot be met in the regular college instructional program.

The college's policy concerning independent study shall be specified in detail in the college catalog.
